DEDICATION

The Class of 1958 dedicates this first yearbook of Bedford High School to our beloved sixth grade teacher, who for two generations has guided and prepared many students for the challenging years ahead. We shall always remember with deep respect this wonderful woman who has devoted her life to the students of Bedford.

Mrs. Bessie A. Liljegren

Warren D. Bennett, Superintendent

To the Class of 1958.

Congratulations to the first graduating class of Bedford High School. Yours has been a journey of pioneering and establishing tradition. Continue your pursuit of knowledge, skills, habits, and ideals that make for good American citizens. Well trained young people of today will become the leaders of tomorrow's conquest of space.

It is essential that each of you strive for the highest attainments of which you are capable and thereby fulfill your place in helping to make our United States the leader in the space age.

Very truly yours,

Warren D. Bennett

Edward H. Gillespie, Principal

To the Class of 1958

You, the Class of 1958, have had the unusual honor of being "seniors" since the ninth grade. Upon your shoulders has fallen the task of guiding our undergraduates through four years of high school.

Now, it becomes your responsibility to use the leadership qualities you have developed by taking your place in society as competent and well-integrated human beings.

The future is ahead of you. You are prepared and ready. Use your resources wisely and you cannot fail.

Very truly yours,

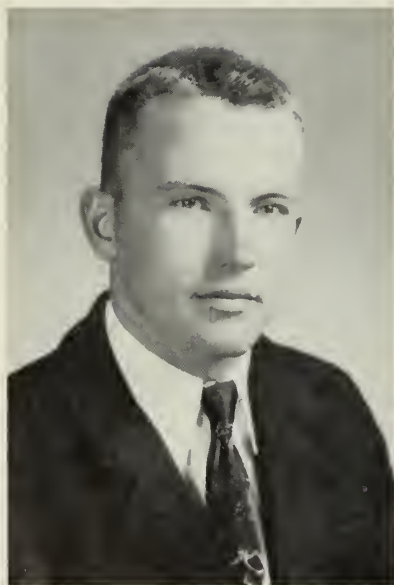

Edward H. Gillespie

We would like to acknowledge them and thank them for helping to prepare us for the future.

MRS. IRENE PREVOST

IT'S YOUR CHOICE

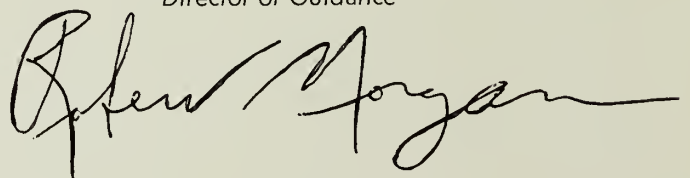

I have tried to make this statement to the graduating class simple, direct, and profitable. This was reasonably difficult to do, as there is so much that needs saying, and so little space for the telling of it. You have been told that the age you enter is a fantastic age—this is true. You have also been told that you are the nation's potential—its promise for the future. This is also true. Above all this, you have been told that the opportunity for a lived life, for "being somebody that counts" and enjoying it, lies within yourselves. It is this latter point that I would like to elaborate upon.

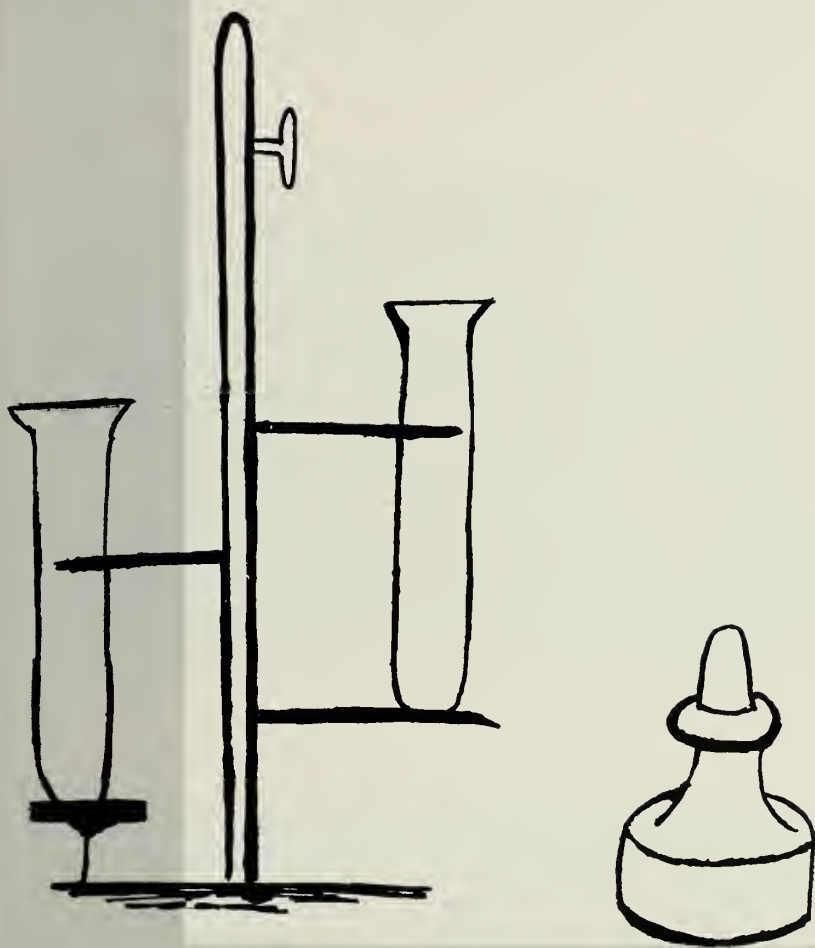

The satisfaction derived from any effort, whether it be academic or vocational, varies in direct ratio to the amount of effort put into it. This appears to hold true, whether the activity is academic or vocational—of high prestige value or menial in nature. We can safely assume that the people who usually profit most from any human activity are those who "give it all they've got!"

It is also realistic to recognize that we cannot all profit from a college education. We cannot all work as technologists. We cannot all spend our lives in contemplation of the esthetic. In our society, someone must manufacture and produce the materials necessary for our complex social structure to exist. Someone must perform the labor that makes it possible for others to bring theoretical advances into being. Is it not better to be a reasonably good office worker than a poor administrator? Can we deny that a skilled craftsman may contribute much more than a discontented or inept engineer? Granted the need is great for the thinker and the creator, but is not the need equally great for those who labor to bring their plans to fruit? Do not emphasize "having and getting" to the detriment of "being and becoming." Consider less the idea of "whatness" and develop the growth of "whatever."

To sum up: give yourselves the opportunity of experiencing the feeling of worth and completeness that comes only from attainment and self-realization. How to go about this? Understand your potential and your limits. Set your sights on a realistic, desirable goal, and do your best to attain it. If you can profit by college or technical training, by all means do so. If such is not the case, accept this fact and utilize your effort elsewhere. And lastly, but most important, be a contributing member of society. Find completeness by giving of yourself to others. Feel contentment in the realization that you have done, and are doing, everything you can to attain your place in society. Good luck.

CASANOVA OF THE UNDERWORLD SHOT AT

An attempt on the life of Mr. William Bragdon was made last night. Mr. Bragdon was in the company of a suspicious character wearing a trench coat. It seems that this hood was Nancy Davis, body-guard for Craig Dorman, noted French fashion designer.

The attempt was made near Broodspot's Barrel Business, owned and operated by William Bieren. The officer in charge is Donna Cassidy, famed wire-tapper for the FBI. Her assistant, Gene Burris, one time flatfoot in Bedford, found clues which led to the arrest of Shel Gittens, owner of the Gitten's Mittens Factory.

The police are expected to raid Von Dutch's Shoe Shop owned by David Herrling. The reported line-up will probably consist of David King, one-time butterfly catcher for a Boston Museum; Bob Walsh, "Surgeon at Large," and his assistant, Steven Martin; Linda Rivet, taxi driver, and her mechanic, Loretta Michaels; Diane Flewelling, rebel with a cause; Barbara Webber, a lady wrestler; Mr. Gittens' unsuspected assistant, Carol Cavanaugh, Ex-Girl Scout Leader.

SEC. OF THE TREASURY REFUSES TO SIGN BILL

Jean Williamson refuses to sign bill passed by Congress. Miss Williamson said the last time money was appropriated to Brig. General David Douglas of the Army, the money was spent for nothing. The mission—the first exploration of the moon—was a flop because Robert Whitley, the U.S.A.F. ace space jockey, and James Manosh, credited with being the first man to reach the moon, were on hand to greet the Army explorers and to hand them complete maps of the moon.

RESIGNATIONS HANDED IN TO PRINCIPAL AT BEDFORD HIGH

Two teachers handed resignations to David Webber in order to take jobs elsewhere. They are Susan York, who taken a job as a cheerleading instructor at City High in Whitewater, Wis., and Mary Sweeney, who gave up her job at Bedford to teach Math at Concord High.

UNEMPLOYMENT DECLINES

Unemployment in the nation has been going down. One of the main reasons is that the unemployment agency on Fifth here in Bedford has sent many out on good jobs. The manager of the agency is Frank Edwards. Mr. Edwards specializes in female help.

Joan Fox, owner of Foxy's Dude Ranch, has accepted many of Mr. Edwards' girls. Nancy Markel was given a job as Junior's milkman and Barbara Scrymgeour was placed in a flower pot cleaning shop.

The only two males Mr. Edwards has placed in jobs are Donald King, famous Two-Gun King of Television, and George Payeur, now a Bow-wow Breeder—only one in the world.

ATHLETE HURT

C. David Cole was injured today after falling over Paula Lynch, who is still loafing. Mr. Cole, water boy for the Boston Celtics, was taken to the nearest doll hospital where Connie Barnett is a nurse. Mr. Cole took his time signing in with the secretary, Miss Valerie Capen.

The Grand March.

In the spring of 1957 two juniors had a bright idea. The Juniors: Craig Dorman and Tommy Lindley. On this page is recorded the results of that idea.

Permission was given by Mr. Gillespie, and the work began. A group of 14 were selected from the applicants who had expressed a willingness "to try anything once." We persuaded Mr. Melanson and Miss Blakeney to be our sponsors in this venture. Letters were sent out to many high schools across the country, asking if they would be interested in an exchange program. Among the replies was one from Whitewater, Wisconsin. The letter appeared to show enthusiasm about the exchange, and all aspects of the high school in Whitewater seemed to be just what we were looking for; not too large a school, and a long distance from Bedford. When we came back to school in the fall, we proceeded to earn our expense money for the trip, half to be paid by the exchanger and half to be earned by the group, which worked on a cake sale, a magazine drive, and a spaghetti supper.

All this proved to be worthwhile, for on December 1, 1957, at 10 a.m., we boarded an American Airlines DC-7, at Boston's Logan Airport, and our journey into the unknown had begun.

One of the original plotters, Tommy Lindley, was unable to make this trip, for in September he had moved to Stanford, Conn., but he was with us in spirit.

Billy's favorite

Financial conference

After a stopover at Buffalo, New York, and a change of planes at Chicago, we arrived in Milwaukee at about 5:30, tired, some of us airsick, and all of us hungry. After we had eaten and relaxed, we boarded a bus for Whitewater, where we arrived about 9 o'clock. Our exchange partners met us and escorted us to Whitewater State Teachers College, where a reception was held in our honor.

The reception was a prelude to a week of fun, friendship, and a little education.

During the week we attended two very close basketball games. College High lost the first game by two points and won the second by one point. Our other activities included visits to Madison and Milwaukee. At the former, together with our exchange partners, we toured the state capitol and visited the University of Wisconsin. While at Milwaukee we were given the deluxe tour of Milwaukee County Stadium, home of the Milwaukee Braves. We also looked through the Allis-Chalmers Plant and the Schlitz Brewery.

The rest of the week was filled with dances, a swimming party, and various other activities that made our stay in Whitewater most enjoyable. This wonderful week ended with a breakfast, sponsored by the Whitewater Chamber of Commerce, Sunday morning at the local country club. That afternoon we climbed aboard a College High bus with our exchange counterparts, who accompanied us to Milwaukee. We took a plane to Chicago and from there to Boston where we arrived about 9:30 that night, glad to be home but missing Whitewater. Happiest of all to get home were Mr. Melanson and Miss Blakeney, who had had a rather trying week but pulled through OK.
